Candid Comments from the Producer

Happy Thanksgiving!

Happy Thanksgiving! The purpose of this issue is simply to celebrate Thanksgiving. I have had a number of special issues since starting the Candid variety of the journals just for fun.

These issues include:

- ◆ Christmas 2012
- ◆ Valentine's Day 2013
- ◆ April Fool's Day 2013
- ◆ Christmas 2013
- ◆ News Flash 2014
- ◆ Happy New Year 2015
- ◆ Thanksgiving 2015
- ◆ Pi Day 2016
- ◆ St. Patrick's Day 2016
- ◆ Thanksgiving 2016

No doubt that this year has been trying, historic, and stressful for the various events and activities that occurred, but Thanksgiving nonetheless remains the same and is celebrated for the same purpose every year, to give thanks to God for what you have and for the many blessings you have in your life!

With the historic election we had recently and the huge upset that about half of the country has over the outcome of the election cannot change the purpose of Thanksgiving and cannot diminish your reasons and ability to give thanks! While about half of the population of the country thinks the country will finally get fixed, the other half thinks the country will be destroyed and thrown back into the days of slavery and intolerance. That fact is that neither is true because the country will follow the path that God has laid out. He has placed people where they are and will be in order for His will to be accomplished. So many have left out and ignored God in this election and couldn't care less about what God wants! God is sovereign over the entire world, and He knows what He is doing especially when we the people on the earth do not understand! Happy Thanksgiving!

Okay. Well, Sorta...

You know how you go to the store and buy those cans of “100% pure pumpkin” so you can make pies, cakes, bread, cookies, etc? Well, those cans of “pumpkin” puree are sorta not from actual pumpkins! WHAT?! Yep, it’s not technically pumpkin that’s in the cans of 100% pure pumpkin! FRAUD! Well, actually no! So, here is what is the deal. The FDA does not give distinctions as to the difference among the varieties of most pumpkins, squash, and gourds because of their very close genetic makeup. Therefore companies are not violating any laws about the contents. See FDA’s notes->

CPG Sec. 585.725 “Pumpkin” - Labeling Articles Made from Certain Varieties of Squash

BACKGROUND:

Canned “pumpkin” has for many years been packed from field pumpkin (Cucurbita pepo) or certain varieties of firm-shelled, golden-fleshed, sweet squash (Cucurbita maxima), or mixtures of these. Pumpkin and squash are sometimes mixed intentionally to obtain the consistency most acceptable to users.

Since 1938, we have consistently advised canners that we would not initiate regulatory action solely because of their using the designation “pumpkin” or “canned pumpkin” on labels for articles prepared from golden-fleshed, sweet squash, or mixtures of such squash with field pumpkins. In the absence of any evidence that this designation misleads or deceives consumers we see no reason to change this policy.

POLICY:

In the labeling of articles prepared from golden-fleshed, sweet squash or mixtures of such squash and field pumpkin, we will consider the designation “pumpkin” to be in essential compliance with the “common or usual name” requirements of sections 403(i)(1) and 403(i)(2) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, and the “specifying of identity” required by section 1453(a)(1) of the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act.

Issued: 6/20/69

Revised: 8/20/73

Reissued: 10/1/80, 12/8/88
